

So for the second time, I confronted Kenny about this through the previously mentioned person. He apologized, again. However, things would only get worse - and I hope you get used to hearing those words.